

ABSTRACT

In an air intake apparatus for an internal combustion engine providing a throttle body for each of a plurality of air intake passages provided for each cylinder of the internal combustion engine, an air flow meter which measures an air volume suctioned
5 into a cylinder corresponding to the air intake passage is provided on a part of the insides of the plurality of air intake passages.